El informe final de HISP 205

El informe final de HISP 205 is made up of two parts:

~ a Voicethread recording in Spanish
~ a (no more than) one page self evaluation written in English.

In order to be included in the final report, work must be posted on the class blog prior to December 12th. To include conversations that took place off the blog (via Skype, in person, on the phone, etc), write a post summarizing the logistical details (what happened, when, with whom, etc) and reflecting upon the conversation. Also, consider uploading an image that visually represents the work (e.g. a screenshot).

Your narration must include information about the conversations you had with people inside and outside of class as part of your learning. Be sure to mention how those conversations helped you progress towards your final project and language-learning goals.

The Voicethread:

We started the semester talking about autoretratos. Think of this VT as your autoretrato for HISP 205: choose experiences from this semester that best exemplify your work and your progress this term and then talk about them. What should I know about your work and your efforts this term that reading your blog or seeing you in class might not tell me?

The VT should include a minimum of 15 distinct images from the blog. How you arrange the images is totally up to you. Do not read. Do not list. Organize your thoughts beforehand. Circumlocute when necessary. Don’t use Google Translate. Don’t rely upon Word Reference. Tell a story.

The self evaluation:

For the self evaluation your task is to talk about what you learned in this class, how you know you learned it, what letter grade you believe you have earned for those efforts, and why. As we discussed at the midterm, there is the grade you would like to receive vs the grade you truly believe you earned. I am interested in the latter, and I want to know your rationale for choosing that grade.

The self evaluation should be written in English, and no more than one page in length.

Handing it all in:
The deadline for handing in your work is 11 a.m. on Saturday, December 17, but you are welcome to submit completed work anytime after December 12th. Please hand in both parts at the same time.

Send your self evaluation to me as an email attachment in DOC, DOCX, or RTF format. Once you have completed your Voicethread, please be sure to “share” it with me. Click share--> click on Hispanic Studies 205--> click on Barbara. Done!

I will email you to confirm that I have received both parts of your final report. Please be attentive to your email after you submit your work in case I need to contact you.

Should you have any questions, please let me know. My office hours this week are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 1-3.
